PERFORMANCE REVIEW

The information in this section has been provided to BHM by BHCM. Derived from data calculated by BHCM, based on total performance data for each period provided by the Fund's administrator (IFS) and risk data provided by BHCM.

BH Macro Limited – performance overview

The NAV per share of BHM's USD shares depreciated by 1.17% and the NAV per share of BHM's GBP shares depreciated by 1.22% in November 2019. Directional trading of US and European interest rates generated losses, while emerging market interest rate trading generated some smaller, offsetting gains. Small further losses came from commodity and FX trading.

BHAL

Overall losses from directional trading of US and European interest rates were partially mitigated through tactical trading. Trading of GBP and emerging market interest rates generated modest gains as did GBP inflation and European government bond relative value strategies. Latam FX generated small losses which were partially offset by gains in G10 FX trading.

BHAS

The overall small loss was the result of losses in USD and EUR rates and curve trading mostly covered by gains in basis and rates volatility.

BHMB

Interest rate trading drove returns, while FX trading detracted modestly. Within interest rate trading, gains came from directional and swap spread positioning of Korean government debt as well as from directional trading of Chinese rates. Additional gains came from curve, direction and option positioning in Japanese rates while curve trading of the dollar-block (USD/HKD/SGD) detracted slightly. Modest losses in FX trading were driven by directional and option trading in USD/China.

BHFG

BHFG experienced losses across long USD rates and long gold positions as early 2020 rate cuts were priced out of the curve. There were also smaller losses on long GBP structures as FX volatilities fell. BHFG made a small net gain in tactical trading of rates.

BHGV

Most markets traded in a small range and realised volatility fell in November. Also implied volatilities, especially in FX, fell back to lows of the year. FX implied volatility in major currency pairs has reached the all-time lows of 2007. Realised volatility in interest rates has been fairly high and there is demand for optionality from hedgers. Volatility investors are keeping an eye on the callable bond issuance which typically picks up in Q1. So far the issuance has been slow in 2019. With equity markets at 2019 highs, there will be a significant amount of cancellations in autocallable notes during the next few months and hence new issuances could also pick up.

Other*

US rates directional trading detracted from performance and there was a smaller loss on FX trading. Small gains on equity strategies offset losses on commodities.

MANAGER'S MARKET REVIEW AND OUTLOOK

The information in this section has been provided to BHM by BHCM.

US

Job creation jumped in November and the unemployment rate ticked back down to a 50-year low of 3.5%. Nevertheless, wage and price inflation are historically muted for the eleventh year of a business-cycle expansion, leaving the Federal Reserve on hold until the outlook changes. In Washington, the House moved closer to impeaching President Trump even as it made progress inking the USMCA trade deal with Canada and Mexico. Trade negotiations with China show little sign of progress.

UK

The Conservative Party won the General Election held on 12 December by a landslide, winning 365 out of 650 Parliamentary seats for a majority of 80 seats. While opinion polls had predicted the Conservative victory, the margin exceeded most expectations. The result paves the way for Prime Minister Boris Johnson to bring back a vote on his Withdrawal Agreement Bill which will now almost certainly be passed, leading to the UK leaving the EU on 31 January 2020. The GBP rose 3.5% vs the USD immediately after the exit poll was released, although this was partially reversed in the hours afterward as focus shifted toward the next stage of EU negotiations focussing on the future arrangement.

EMU

The level of the EMU Composite PMI stood below the Q3 average in October-November, signalling slower GDP growth in Q4 than both 0.2% q/q in Q3 and the European Central Bank ("ECB") Q4 forecast (also 0.2%). EMU flash Harmonised Index of Consumer Prices ("HICP") inflation rose from 0.7% to 1.0% y/y in November, while Core inflation rose from 1.1% to 1.3%, partly reflecting upwards pressure from its most volatile components and technical factors, while underlying trends remain subdued. ECB President Lagarde's first policy meeting confirmed continuity and that monetary policy is not exhausted; the ECB is ready to act if necessary. The ECB upgraded its assessment of growth risks, but its macroeconomic projections remained low, with GDP growth forecast at 1.4% in 2022 and HICP inflation still well-below target at 1.6% in 2022. Lagarde confirmed the ECB will conduct a Strategy Review that will commence in January 2020 and will be completed before the end of that year.

Japan

Prime Minister Abe announced a fiscal stimulus package of 13 trillion yen. Of that amount, 5 trillion merely fills in scheduled spending cuts. The 8 trillion marginal increase represents 1.4% of nominal GDP, though actual spending, especially on infrastructure, will likely be spread over a few years. Nonetheless, the plan allows the Bank of Japan to put plans for additional stimulus on hold.

Risk Factors

Acquiring shares in BHM may expose an investor to a significant risk of losing all of the amount invested. Any person who is in any doubt about investing in BHM (and therefore gaining exposure to BHMf and the investment funds in which BHMf invests (together with BHMf "the Underlying Funds")) should consult an authorised person specialising in advising on such investments. Any person acquiring shares in BHM must be able to bear the risks involved. These include the following:

- The Underlying Funds are speculative and involve substantial risk.
- The Underlying Funds will be leveraged and will engage in speculative investment practices that may increase the risk of investment loss. The Underlying Funds may invest in illiquid securities.
- Past results of each Underlying Fund's investment manager(s) are not necessarily indicative of future performance of that Underlying Fund, and that Underlying Fund's performance may be volatile.
- An investor could lose all or a substantial amount of his or her investment.
- An investment manager may have total investment and trading authority over an Underlying Fund and each Underlying Fund is dependent upon the services of its investment manager(s).
- Investments in the Underlying Funds are subject to restrictions on withdrawal or redemption and should be considered illiquid.
- The investment managers' incentive compensation, fees and expenses may offset an Underlying Fund's trading and investment profits.
- No Underlying Fund is required to provide periodic pricing or valuation information to investors with respect to individual investments.
- The Underlying Funds are not subject to the same regulatory requirements as mutual funds.
- A portion of the trades executed for the Underlying Funds may take place on foreign markets.
- The Underlying Funds are subject to conflicts of interest.
- Each Underlying Fund is dependent on the services of certain key personnel, and, were certain or all of them to become unavailable, an Underlying Fund may prematurely terminate.
- Each Underlying Fund's managers will receive performance-based compensation. Such compensation may give such managers an incentive to make riskier investments than they otherwise would.
- An Underlying Fund may make investments in securities of issuers in emerging markets. Investment in emerging markets involve particular risks, such as less strict market regulation, increased likelihood of severe inflation, unstable currencies, war, expropriation of property, limitations on foreign investments, increased market volatility, less favourable or unstable tax provisions, illiquid markets and social and political upheaval.

The above summary risk factors do not purport to be a complete description of the relevant risks of an investment in shares in BHM or the Underlying Funds and therefore reference should be made to publicly available documents and information.
