PERFORMANCE REVIEW

The information in this section has been provided to BHM by BHCM. Derived from data calculated by BHCM, based on total performance data for each period provided by the Fund's administrator (IFS) and risk data provided by BHCM.

BH Macro Limited – performance overview

The NAV per share of BHM's USD shares appreciated by 0.77%* and the NAV per share of BHM's GBP shares appreciated by 0.76%* in November 2020. Emerging market FX trading generated gains, primarily from US dollar vs Asia and to a lesser extent Latam and CEEMEA currencies. Additional gains came from equity trading and tactical positioning of US interest rates. Partially offsetting these gains were losses from UK and European interest rate strategies, G10 currency trading and commodity trading of precious metals.

BHAL

FX trading across G10 and emerging markets drove returns in November. Further gains came from tactical directional trading of US rates and inflation bonds and from emerging market interest rate strategies. Smaller losses were incurred in UK interest rate trading, commodity trading of precious metals and from equity index trading.

BHAS

Most of the positive performance stemmed from FX trading via USD shorts, with some offsetting losses being realised in commodities space. In the interest rates space, gains in EUR were offset by losses of similar magnitude in USD.

BHMB

Gains from FX trading, primarily from short dollar positioning vs Asian currencies, were partially offset by losses from directional and yield curve trading of US, HKD and Korean interest rates.

BHFG

The majority of the loss for this month was caused by long precious metals positions as gold and silver prices fell over the month. BHFG had a small loss on curve cap positions due to flattening of the USD rates curve. These losses were offset in part by gains in short USD FX positions.

BHGV

The market went into the US elections with a very large risk premium for volatility across asset classes. The election outcome and positive news on a COVID-19 vaccine caused risk assets to rally significantly and volatility was sold very aggressively. In particular, short-dated equity volatility, where the premium had been high, had one of the worst months in history. FX and rates volatility also followed to much lower levels. BHGV had most positions in forward volatility which performed significantly better as term structure normalized after the election.

Other

FX positioning in USD vs Asia together with equity and credit positioning drove gains over the month. Smaller losses were incurred in European sovereign bond trading and G10 FX trading.

MANAGER'S MARKET REVIEW AND OUTLOOK

The information in this section has been provided to BHM by BHCM.

US

Job gains slowed in November and the decline in the unemployment rate to 6.7% was entirely accounted for by persons dropping out of the labour force. Wage and price inflation were tame with core PCE inflation unchanged on the month and moderate on a 12-month change basis. The big news in November was the election, which saw the incumbent, President Trump, failing to earn a second term - only the third time this has occurred in the post-war period. Meanwhile, Republicans made gains in the House and will maintain control of the Senate if they win one of the special-election races in Georgia. Investors appeared to welcome divided government.

UK

The second lockdown in England was lifted in early December and the country placed back in a tiered system, although the government announced a planned relaxation of rules over the Christmas period. The UK became the first Western country to authorise and begin administering a Covid vaccine. Meanwhile, the Chancellor's spending review laid bare the enormous levels of public borrowing in 2020 and pointed to less fiscal support next year. In data, GDP grew significantly (15.5%) in Q3, but was still nearly 10% below pre-crisis levels. The unemployment rate rose from 4.5% to 4.8%, growing at a slightly slower pace than in the previous month, whilst inflation for November was higher than expected. The ongoing Brexit negotiations between the UK and the EU remain stuck as compromises over state aid, fisheries and governance are yet to be found.

EMU

The November Flash Composite PMI dropped sharply in the EMU (-4.7pts), back well-below the 50-threshold at 45.3. The driver of the pullback was in Services, hardest hit by renewed lockdown restrictions, while Manufacturing continued to provide resistance and will provide some offset, though EMU Q4 GDP will likely contract again. Recent news on a Covid vaccine is welcome and reduces greatly uncertainties, as well as chances of tail risks, even as its implementation is challenging. EMU Core inflation remained rooted at its record-low 0.2% in November and headline inflation at -0.3% against a backdrop of ongoing deflationary tendencies, resulting in additional easing and recalibration of ECB policy at the December meeting.

Japan

Like most of the developed world, Japan's near-term economic prospects are tied to Covid. With the turn to colder weather, cases have picked up, which may explain the deterioration in the Economic Watcher's Survey. Prime Minister Suga announced a new support package with a heavy emphasis on spending and incentives for green energy and digital technologies. This third round is smaller than the first two but brings the level of total Covid related stimulus to $3 trillion.

Risk Factors

Acquiring shares in BHM may expose an investor to a significant risk of losing all of the amount invested. Any person who is in any doubt about investing in BHM (and therefore gaining exposure to BHMF and the investment funds in which BHMF invests (together with BHMF "the Underlying Funds")) should consult an authorised person specialising in advising on such investments. Any person acquiring shares in BHM must be able to bear the risks involved. These include the following:

- The Underlying Funds are speculative and involve substantial risk.
- The Underlying Funds will be leveraged and will engage in speculative investment practices that may increase the risk of investment loss. The Underlying Funds may invest in illiquid securities.
- Past results of each Underlying Fund's investment manager(s) are not necessarily indicative of future performance of that Underlying Fund, and that Underlying Fund's performance may be volatile.
- An investor could lose all or a substantial amount of his or her investment.
- An investment manager may have total investment and trading authority over an Underlying Fund and each Underlying Fund is dependent upon the services of its investment manager(s).
- Investments in the Underlying Funds are subject to restrictions on withdrawal or redemption and should be considered illiquid.
- The investment managers' incentive compensation, fees and expenses may offset an Underlying Fund's trading and investment profits.
- No Underlying Fund is required to provide periodic pricing or valuation information to investors with respect to individual investments.
- The Underlying Funds are not subject to the same regulatory requirements as mutual funds.
- A portion of the trades executed for the Underlying Funds may take place on foreign markets.
- The Underlying Funds are subject to conflicts of interest.
- Each Underlying Fund is dependent on the services of certain key personnel, and, were certain or all of them to become unavailable, an Underlying Fund may prematurely terminate.
- Each Underlying Fund's managers will receive performance-based compensation. Such compensation may give such managers an incentive to make riskier investments than they otherwise would.
- An Underlying Fund may make investments in securities of issuers in emerging markets. Investment in emerging markets involve particular risks, such as less strict market regulation, increased likelihood of severe inflation, unstable currencies, war, expropriation of property, limitations on foreign investments, increased market volatility, less favourable or unstable tax provisions, illiquid markets and social and political upheaval.

The above summary risk factors do not purport to be a complete description of the relevant risks of an investment in shares in BHM or the Underlying Funds and therefore reference should be made to publicly available documents and information.
