THE FUTUREGRAIL TEAM

Ali Nael

Ali Nael, a native of Beirut, is the founder and CEO of FutureGrail. Before moving to Singapore in 2010 to establish his oil trading business headquarters, he launched numerous successful trading businesses based in China and Malaysia. Following his introduction into the world of fine and luxury watches in 2009, Mr. Nael began his personal collection, which includes renowned horological brands, independent watchmakers, and special artifacts from leading brands the world over.

Mr. Nael is perhaps most renowned as a specialist collector of iconic and vintage Patek Philippe timepieces and his passion for the maison led him to author a book on the brand entitled, My Dream Collection in 2019. His substantial collection of over 200 historical pieces, dating back to 1800 is the foundation of the new FutureGrail Watch Museum in Singapore, which opened to the public in April 2023.

For Mr. Nael, collecting and appreciating vintage timepieces is not just about gaining ownership or prospects of investments. It is more about acquainting intimately with the history and development of watchmaking. Mr. Nael passionately feels it is important to honor the great brands and their watchmakers who have created products of exquisite engineering and craftsmanship we long to wear on our wrists.

As a collector and connoisseur of high-end watches, Mr. Nael desires to share his passion and deep knowledge of how to curate and build a valuable collection with others, which is one of his motivating reasons for establishing FutureGrail. The investment advisory company is designed to assist by guiding both new and experienced collectors in every aspect of their collecting journey.

Mohsin Rizvi

Mohsin Rizvi, is the Co-Founder and COO of FutureGrail, an investment advisory platform that's transforming the high-end watch industry. Since moving to Singapore in 2011, he has held leadership positions at some of the world's largest technology companies, advising industry leaders on digital transformation strategies.

Mr. Rizvi's interest in watches began in his early 20s, and he is passionate about unlocking the intrinsic value of high-end watches as collectibles and investment assets. By merging his passion for watches and technology, he has created innovative solutions for the industry that allow the democratization of high-end watches by providing investment opportunities and guidance to collectors.

FUTUREGRAIL

Driven by the desire to legitimize watches as an alternative asset class recognized by institutions and individuals, Mr. Rizvi has co-created FutureGrail's platform and its offerings to generate value for the high-end watch industry for collectors and investors alike.

Arnaud Tellier

Historian, watchmaker and antique watch expert Arnaud Tellier is one of the world's most respected horologists.

Mr. Tellier's passion for horology started at a young age in Rouen. He became the 15th apprentice at Louis Gautier at 16, and earned a watchmaker-repairer diploma at La Chaux-de-Fonds. He then specialized in restoring old watches at the MIH, earning a technician diploma. Since then, Mr. Tellier has had a storied 30-year career as a distinguished horology expert.

He joined Antiquorum as Vice-President in 1990 and served in that role until he became the Director and Curator of the Patek Philippe Museum in Geneva for 11 years. His unparalleled knowledge of horology, spanning from the 1600s to the present day, is showcased in his hundreds of publications. Possessing exclusive insights, Arnaud's expertise renders him an invaluable asset to FutureGrail. As the Head of Curation for the FutureGrail museum, he will play a crucial role in shaping the collection and ensuring it reflects the innovation and excellence that the brand embodies. Additionally, Mr. Tellier will serve as a key advisor to FutureGrail's clients, providing his exclusive insights and expertise to help collectors build investment-grade collections.
