Quote of Support from Chief Calvin Straightnose, Keeseekoose First Nation

“I know how important meetings with communities have been to this process and to getting people the information they need. It is also clear that our voices have been heard. People spoke about wanting a simple process, a process that would not be re-traumatizing, that would help them see justice in their lifetime. The settlement does this. It clearly puts survivors first and treats people with dignity and respect.”
